

The Lying-In Hospital

Founded in 1799, The Lying-In Hospital was New York's first hospital devoted solely to the care of women in childbirth.

Today, NewYork-Presbyterian Hospital's Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology/ Lying-In Hospital, under the direction of Frank Chervenak, M.D., continues to set new standards in patient care, research, training and community outreach that translate into better medical care for women of all ages.

THE BABY QUILT TILE WALL

The Lying-In Hospital at NewYork-Presbyterian is pleased to announce the creation of a tile wall to commemorate and celebrate the birth of children and grandchildren. The wall design will resemble a patchwork quilt, with tiles available in three sizes. It will be located on the 7th Floor of the Greenberg Pavilion.

All proceeds generated by the tile wall will benefit the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology and will be used to advance clinical care, research and education.
